

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An enclosure for closed-circuit television cameras comprising a box-like composite body which is closed on a working side by a wall which comprises a transparent plate supported by a frame which is fixed to the body, an opposite side being closed by a removable cover which allows insertion of a television camera; the frame forms a seat for the plate with an abutment surface which is directed outward so as to allow assembly of the plate from the outside inward.